Presenter has deep knowledge of subject matter.

Very informational. Thank you Debbie!!

Information was very clear. Very understandable.

Very informative and interesting.

Debbie is very knowledgeable. She was able to answer all questions that were asked.

Very organized.

The professionalism in presentation and easy to understand material. Overall, each topic discussed was informative and in some cases a good review.

Instructor really well prepared. Gave relevant examples.

Debbie's seminars are always very informative.

I feel like the information about internal audits & compliance was very beneficial for a beginning auditor & will help me formulate a compliance plan for our practice. Having a recent internal audit has made me more aware I need to have a compliance plan in effect as well as procedures for my own internal audits.

I entered Debbie Bell's CPC training program in October 2000. After 22 weeks of intensive and often grueling study, I successfully completed the course this past April. I had entered the program hoping my previous 15 years of experience in Professional Fee Billing would make the course both challenging and informative. This course has brought me to a fuller understanding and appreciation for the vast quantity of information cataloged in both CPT-4 and ICD-9 books that I had been using for years.

I was impressed by Ms. Bell's incredible patience, diligence and creativity in presenting the material to a diversely experienced audience. As a result I not only obtained certification, but also have attained critical understanding of Physician coding from both a compliance and reimbursement perspective.

A few months ago, I had the great fortune of meeting Debbie Bell. I had decided to retest for the CPC exam and wanted someone who would be able to fill in the gaps of my current knowledge. I have been in the health care field for a number of years, and like many others, felt I had accumulated enough working and book education to be able to pass the exam. I was wrong! Let me start by explaining that regardless of what you may hear becoming a certified coder (office or hospital side) is not an entry-level profession. As I explained, I already had two other certifications and years in three different specialties. However, this did not adequately prepare me to pass the exam. Once I got over the emotional adjustment of not passing (it had been years since I "flunked" a test), I made up my mind that I was going to pass. This became a personal goal. So, I began researching for the person who would support me in my endeavors. I received a few names from the national organization, and when Debbie's name was offered, so was the comment, "Well, if you are looking for a great teacher, she is the one!" So, I called Debbie and explained my situation. I believe she was sympathetic to my cause and agreed to help. Meeting with Debbie is not a trip around the corner. I drive four hours round trip to receive her "pearls of wisdom", I call them. But it is a trip I am more than happy to take. I knew after my first session, that if I was ever going to pass this exam, Debbie was the only one who could or would help me do it.

Through her years of working in health care, Debbie has amassed an in-depth understanding and knowledge of many specialties. She is, therefore, able to explain why and how the coding pertains and should be selected. In addition, at one time, Debbie was trained to be a teacher, this of course was obvious immediately. She is organized, focused, versatile, understanding and manages to get her students to learn. She will find the style and manner to get her point across. However, do not be fooled, you must come prepared and be willing to work. I must again state that this is not an entry level program. In some ways, having worked in a single specialty for a number of years, I felt handicapped. You become comfortable with the repetition. However, Debbie is able to broaden your knowledge quickly and with ease. If I had to say one thing about Debbie, it would be that she would be the ideal individual to clone! There really should be more like her. The importance of certified coders in health care will continue to rise over the years ahead, and it will be equally important that they be adequately trained. Debbie Bell is the "Teacher of Choice". If you are planning to spend the money and time to become certified, you should select the BEST. You give yourself a head start as a student of Debbie Bell.

Debbie will provide her students with all of the usual books from the national organization. In addition, you will receive handouts, diagrams and her tests-OH, her tests, not easy but a true picture of what to expect on the exam. This is the most important preparation of all. Two minutes a question does not allow much time to debate an answer. Knowing the information cold or where to find it quickly is what will make the difference. Confidence of knowledge will be your best foundation to pass. This confidence and so much more is what you receive as a student of Debbie Bell.

Don't let distance prevent you from learning. Search her out and sign-up without hesitation, you will be glad you did.

A grateful Student,

Three days after writing this letter, Geneva phoned to tell us she passed her CPC!!!!

I completed the coding class conducted by Deborah Bell from October 2000 to April 2001 and sat for the certification exam in April 2001. Because of the overwhelming amount of material to cover in class, I was apprehensive about sitting for the exam. However, Ms. Bell's wealth of knowledge and expertise as an instructor kept us moving forward while addressing weak areas throughout the course. Ms. Bell also prepared us well for the exam by telling us what to expect and giving us hints and suggestions for test taking. The course has provided me with additional, valuable resources to use in my present position.

Thanks to Debbie I have successfully completed the AAPC exam and am now a Certified Professional Coder!

Actual examples are based on commonly occurring scenarios. ICD 9 update info will help to maintain compliance on encounter info. Opportunity for provider education.

The amount of info on subject matter.

Very informative. Found codes to bill that I didn't know I could bill.

Debbies knowledge base.
